P. H. S. Eliminated By Greenfield; Ironton Five Defeats Athens Team

ATHENS, O., Mar. 1.—(Special to the Times)—Portsmouth's high school team considered the best in the present tournament was eliminated this morning in the final round of the elimination series by McClain high of Greenfield the score being 11 to 10 at the close of an extra five minute period. The score stood 9 and 9 at the end of the regular 25 minute period and in the five minutes extra P. H. S. made one point while Greenfield came through with two points.

The defeat of Portsmouth at this stage of the tournament was the big surprise of the tournament this year for the River City outfit was counted on as carrying home the silver loving cup and title of champs of southeastern Ohio in Class A.

Another surprise was the outcome of the first game played yesterday afternoon when Ironton high won over Athens 12 to 10. Washington C. H. which eliminated Portsmouth last year was eliminated yesterday afternoon by Nelsonville 11 to 10.

This morning Chillicothe won over New Straitsville leaving Ironton to play Nelsonville and Chillicothe meeting Greenfield in the semifinals this afternoon. Portsmouth handed Nelsonville a crushing defeat in Portsmouth several weeks ago and is expected to fall before Ironton. It is a toss up between Chillicothe and Greenfield. Chillicothe has the edge according to the dope for they have defeated Greenfield already this season.

The first game of the Portsmouth-Greenfield game was a 2 to 1 in favor of P. H. S. The future of Captain Phillips and Monk, star forward, to score a field basket showed a close guarding game. Guards Goss and Flowers and forward Doll made one field goal each with Goss adding a free throw and leading in the point getting with three. Phillips made a foul shot and Monk came through with two free throws.

The P. H. S. team with all their championship hopes blasted will return home on the evening B. and O. train.

AGED MAN HIT BY AUTO

Police are endeavoring to learn the identity of a driver of a Ford touring car that struck and seriously injured A. J. "Jack" Taylor, 73, on Front street about 9:15 o'clock Friday night and then sped away without stopping to help his victim. Mr. Taylor, who is well known in the south end of the city, sustained a broken right ankle and a broken left leg above the ankle. He also suffered numerous cuts about the back and side of the head and multiple bruises about the body. Saturday afternoon at Schirrmann hospital his condition was reported as favorable.

The aged man was on his way to a houseboat at the foot of Bond street where he lives. He is cousin of the Gallia street comfort station. He was crossing Front street between Gay and Bond when struck down by the machine. Henry Waring of Eighth street picked up the injured man from the street and placed him in a passing automobile which conveyed him to the hospital. Mr. Taylor lives with his son, A. J. Taylor, Jr.

Two Local Bids Submitted

When bids for the erection of the new Masonic Temple on Gallia street were opened Friday night by Architect E. P. Musselman of the firm of Musselman and Pretzinger, Dayton, it was found that only two local firms had submitted bids, Taylor and Linn, contractors putting up the Marting building and the Hurst hotel, bid on the general contract while the Youngman Sales company submitted the other bid, which was on electrical work.

A number of out of town firms including several in Dayton bid on the general contract. The bids at a glance are considerably higher than the original estimate but a close canvass of the bids is expected to bring the figures down to a point where it will be possible for the building committee to award a contract which will mean an early start on the new temple.

The new building was originally planned to cost about $400,000 but revised plans and present bids are expected to result in a structure costing $500,000.

C. & O. Agrees To Coal Rate Reduction

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., March 1.—A reduction in coal freight rates into Huntington and Kenova of five cents per ton has been agreed to by the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad, it was learned last night.

The announcement was made by W. P. Tingley, manager of the traffic department of the railroad, and Manufacturers' Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, through whose efforts the saving to Southwestern West Virginia manufacturers was effected.

The reduction will not become effective until at least thirty days, Mr. Tingley said, as publication of the rate will have to be made in conformance with the interstate commerce commission regulations.

"The order, when effective, will mean that manufacturing plants on all other organizations and institutions purchasing coal in a large way, will pay five cents less per gross ton from all mines on the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad, excepting those of the New River district."

dilemma. If he remained in London, sooner or later he would be run to earth by those who sought him, who would be seeking him more relentlessly than ever now, after his man-hauling of those messengers of the law last night. If he attempted to go, he delivered himself up to justice by the very act.

He determined, after much gloomy cogitation, to seek the protection of Albemarle in this desperate pass, and with that intent went forth. He perished in it until he reached Claring Cross, when a doubt assailed him.

CHAPTER XV.

The Shadow of the Gallows.

His Grace of Buckingham had not accompanied the Court in its flight to Salisbury. His duties, indeed, recalled him to his lord-lieutenancy in York.

But it was as if he were the voice of duty as to that of caution. He was held fast in London, in the thrall of his passion for Miss Parquharson, and urged because that passion prospered not at all.

It was his obsession on the score of Miss Parquharson that was responsible for his neglect of the letter that Holles had written to him. That letter had reached him at a moment when he was plunged into dismay by the news that Sir John Lawrence's orders had gone forth that all theatres and other places of assembly should close upon the following Saturday, as a very necessary measure in the Lord Mayor's campaign against the plague.

Now the closing of the theatres meant the withdrawal of the players from Town, and with that the end of his grove's opportunities. Either he must acknowledge defeat, or else act promptly.

He took his resolve at last and sent for the subtle Bates, who was the Chaffinch of Wallingford House. He gave him certain commands—whose full purport Master Bates did not completely apprehend—in the matter of a house. That was on the Monday of the week whose Saturday was to see the closing of the theatres. It was the very day on which Holles made his precipitate departure from the Harp.

On Tuesday morning the excellent and resourceful Bates was able to report to his master that he had found precisely such a domicile as his grace required—though why his grace should require it Bates could not even begin to surmise. It was a fairly spacious and excellently equipped dwelling in Knight Street, lately vacated by a tenant who had removed himself into the country out of dread of the plague.

The owner was a certain merchant in Fenchurch Street, who would be glad enough to let the place on easy terms, considering how impossible it was just at present to find tenants for houses in the City or its suburbs.

Bates had pursued his inquiries with characteristic discretion, as he now assured his grace, without allowing it to transpire on whose behalf he was acting.

His grace laughed outright at the assurance and all that it implied that Bates had taken for granted.

"You're growling a very competent scoundrel in my service."

Bates bowed, not without a tinge of meanness. "I am glad to merit your grace's approval," said he dryly. There was a strain of humorous insolence in the fellow, of which the Duke was disposed to be tolerant; perhaps because nothing else was possible with one so intimately acquainted with his conscience.

"Aye. You're a trustworthy rogue. The house will do admirably, though I should have preferred a less populous district."

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 1.—(By the Associated Press)—Appropriation of $153,000 for the purchase of rum chasers for guards was recommended today by the House Appropriations Committee to enable various government departments to wind up the fiscal year without deficit.

The individual items included $110,550,000 to enable the coast guard to recondition twenty destroyers and buy 223 fast motor boats for use against rum runners.

The committee also approved appropriations of $200,000 for repairs and alterations at the Ellis Island immigrant station, and $450,000 for factory buildings at the Leavenworth penitentiary.

Sciotoville Eliminates Piketon Team

Sciotoville's fast stepping high school team fought its way into the semi-finals in the sectional Class B basketball tournament at Greenfield yesterday by defeating Piketon high 12 to 10.

Sciotoville won over Piketon in the P. H. S. gym last Saturday afternoon in the finals in the Portsmouth district sectional tournament. Piketon has a fast team and it was unfortunate that they drew their former opponents for the first round of the elimination.

The victory of Sciotoville yesterday means they play Buckskin township high of Ross county Saturday afternoon. The finals are to be played tonight and should Sciotoville win this afternoon they will go into the finals.

The winner and runner up go to Columbus to take part in the state tournament March 7.

BUYERS DISPLAY CONFIDENCE ON WALL STREET

Rubber Shares Establish New Minimum Prices For The Year

Total stock sales 432,000 shares. 20 industrials averaged 96.20; net gain 61. High 1924: 101.24; low 96.88. 35 railroads averaged 84.13; net gain 35. High 1924: 85.90; low 82.74.

NEW YORK, March 1.—The weakness of rubber shares and a few other individual issues failed to upset the general rise in today's stock market with the result that buyers entered the market with considerable confidence in the final hour. Some of the rubbers established new minimum prices for the year, and Market Street Railway prior preferred dropped more than four points.

Southern Railway touched another new high of 54 and Reading and Norfolk and Western also were strong. Chandler, Mack Truck, Mayfield, A. White Motors, Schulte and American Woolen moved upward briskly and United States Cast Iron Pipe rose over four points. The closing was steady. Sales approximated 400,000 shares.

NEW YORK, March 1.—Quietness prevailed at the opening of today's stock market but there was a rather varied inquiry for the active shares, most of which started a little higher. Chandler motors and Norfolk and Western gained a point. The few exceptions to the upward trend were:
